

AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES (ADA) APPEAL PROCESS

If your ADA paratransit eligibility determination results in a finding of ineligible to receive paratransit service or in a determination of limited or conditional eligibility and you feel that this determination has been made in error, you have the right to appeal this determination.

To file this appeal you must notify the MTA in writing within 60 days of the date on the determination letter. After your appeal is received, a hearing will be scheduled to evaluate your case. The Executive Director of the MTA will serve as the appeal officer. The hearing process (which should not take more than 30 days) will allow you to present information and arguments on your behalf. You may have others present who are knowledgeable of your physical or mental impairment and who can speak on your behalf, but you must pay the cost for these other spokespersons. After the hearing you will be advised in writing of the decision of the appeal officer. The decision of the appeal officer is final.

The MTA is not required to provide you with paratransit service while your appeal is under consideration. If the appeal board has not made its decision within 30 days of receiving your appeal, you are entitled to paratransit service from that time until a final decision is made.
